Get a professional “Whole House” Solution

Many homes leak hot air in the winter and trap heat in the summer, making us crank up the heat or air conditioning to be comfortable. It's like watching hard-earned cash fly out the doors, windows and ceilings of inefficient houses.

For example, if your house is hot and stuffy and you think you need a new air conditioner, you can seal and insulate your house first to keep the heat out. Think of your house as a complete system working together—a “whole house”—rather than individual elements. You'll save on air conditioning bills and may even need a smaller new unit than you had before.

When sealing and insulating your house, your Energy Upgrade California participating contractor can also identify ways to save more energy and get more rebates for:

- Wall insulation
- Energy-efficient heating and air conditioning systems
- Energy-efficient windows
- Cool roofs
- High-efficiency storage gas or tankless water heaters
- Energy-efficient hardwired interior and exterior lighting fixtures
- Other energy-efficiency improvements that are permanent to your house

Keep your cool with energy-efficient windows.

Save energy with efficient heating and cooling systems.

Stop leaks with sealing and insulation.

Save water and energy with low-flow showers and high-efficiency storage gas or tankless water heaters.

The “whole house” approach can help result in:

- Reduced utility bills
- Improved building comfort
- Enhanced indoor air quality
- Reduced impact on the environment
